Skills and Employment Service

Cheshire West and Chester

Are you:
Looking for work?
Wanting to improve your skills to make you more employable?
Needing advice on where to start and how to progress?
Looking for a training course for employment?
In need of employment support because you have a health condition?

Cheshire West and Chester Council's Skills and Employment Service is here to provide all the support you need to find and keep a job.

Skills and Employment Hubs

This prospectus will tell you all about the employment support projects we run and the training courses we offer. Almost all our services are delivered out of Skills and Employment Hubs (previously called Work Zones), our four centres in Chester, Ellesmere Port, Northwich and Winsford. On the next page you can find full details of each Hub and how to contact us.

When you get in touch we will ask about your circumstances and suggest how you can get started. This could be an assessment of your maths, English and IT skills, a training course, developing your job searching skills, volunteering or taking part in one of the employment support projects listed in this booklet.

Most of our services and training courses are for adults aged 19 and over. Some are available to those aged 16 and over.

Tuition fees may apply but many of the courses - including basic maths and English - are free.

We are the largest provider of adult education in the borough. At any one time we work with over 1,000 people to improve their current job prospects or help support their child's education.

Our services

The following pages will give you an overview of what the Skills and Employment Service can offer you.

Because of government funding, each service is aimed at a slightly different age group. We have organised the information by putting the projects for the youngest age groups nearer the start and older age groups towards the end.

Participant K

I have struggled to find employment over the last 2 years. As a single mother it's been hard trying to find a job with hours that work for me. I have also had addiction issues.

Finding suitable employment was vital for me, mainly because it would benefit my child and me financially. More than this, it would also help me to establish a positive routine which would add structure to my life and give me a new purpose.

Since meeting my advisor at Via, he has helped me to understand the correct way to prepare and apply for jobs, and has created a new CV for me which helped massively.

I wasn't sure of the best way to conduct myself in an interview situation and how to explain the gaps in my employment. My advisor worked with me to find the best way to talk about my past situation and work history.

When I was offered an interview at a care home we practised interview questions and answers which I found very helpful. Having the support and someone believing in my ability has made me feel a lot more confident.

I was then offered the position of housekeeper at the care home. It is close to where I live and the employer has been very flexible regarding working hours. I'm glad I had the confidence to explain my childcare needs at the interview because the employer has adjusted my rota so my hours fit around my child.

I'm feeling very positive about the future now and it's reassuring to know that I can still be supported whilst in employment. I feel like my life is now back on the right path.

Fresh Start case study

Participant T

T was not in education, employment or training and was facing several challenges that were preventing him from moving forward. He lacked confidence, struggled to express his needs and rarely left the house. Along with an unhealthy sleep pattern and the absence of a daily routine, he had no previous work experience to build upon.

T's Fresh Start mentor realised a traditional approach might not be the best fit and introduced T to a gym-based support programme. This informal environment allowed him to build trust and improve his wellbeing and confidence at a pace that suited him. Through regular sessions, T established healthier routines and improved his physical fitness, developing life skills such as meal preparation, independence and self-care. With increased confidence, T was more willing to engage with others. He became more comfortable expressing his needs and joining in conversations.

Fresh Start supported T with career profiling, CV and cover letter development, job searching and interview preparation, helping him understand workplace expectations and prepare for employment.

T's progress has been remarkable. He now attends the gym independently, enjoys regular social activities including weekly figure skating sessions. He has developed a structured and positive lifestyle. His improved confidence was evident when he spoke with a government representative during a site visit, explaining the impact of Fresh Start intervention.

T has now progressed into full-time employment. He describes himself as "a completely different person" and credits Fresh Start with helping him build confidence, develop essential life skills and gain the courage to pursue opportunities he never thought possible.

New Ground case study
Participant J

J started a Level 1 Baking and Patisserie qualification at Reaseheath College but left after a week as she felt the college was too big and overwhelming. J signed up for the New Ground programme with no long-term career goal, just wanting to become independent and live on her own in future. J is autistic and said she wanted to be "like everyone else".

J was always prepared and ready to learn but her anxiety when meeting new people was a significant issue; she feels she can comes across as 'shy' or 'distant'. Her lack of self-belief was preventing further progress. Because her biggest barrier was with social interaction, J wanted to work in a small team. New Ground team members identified that she was very good at following instructions, had an excellent eye for detail and was capable of dealing with confidential records.

New Ground advisors matched her strengths with various jobs, exploring office vacancies as the most suitable next step on her journey.

Following some work to improve J's confidence and self-esteem, she attended an interview with West Cheshire Autism Hub. A month later J began her placement, initially working 1 day per week from home due to the pandemic. J's Job Coach reported that she was increasingly confident talking to other professionals independently. Feedback from the employer was positive and J was able to increase her working days.

Within 4 months J was offered a paid job as Personal Assistant to the Strategic Manager, a well-deserved reward after all her hard work on placement. J said that she was "hoping that it might it happen but never really expected it". J continues to develop new skills and grow in confidence.

Connect To Work case study

Participant AM

AM is a 60-year-old female with a history of anxiety which impacts her ability to cope in traditional employment settings. AM wanted to investigate self-employment so she could manage her own schedule and workload. AM's goal was to establish a doggy daycare business, combining her interest in animal care with a sustainable working model.

AM's advisor helped overcome potentially stressful triggers. Over several discussions, the self-employment process was broken down into clear, structured and achievable steps: writing a detailed business plan and marketing plan, developing policies and procedures to meet licensing requirements and designing marketing materials.

Her advisor supported AM in conducting some market research, including reviewing the National Association of Registered Pet Sitters which helped AM to understand local competition, the services offered and pricing structures. The research helped AM realise her goal was achievable.

After creating a financial forecast, AM had a realistic understanding of income and expenditure which contributed to her growing confidence. AM's advisor supported with setting up financial processes and licensing arrangements. Although a 2-star licence is usual for a brand new business, she was awarded a 4-star licence as her policies and procedures were so well organised.

AM has now begun trading and has taken on her first clients. AM says her confidence has grown enormously and her overwhelming feelings are much more manageable as a result of her increased independence and resilience.

AM said, "I would never have got this far without your support. I'd have given up as it would have been too overwhelming."
